Signature Chicken Rice

Chicken Rice is invented by Chinese immigrants when they migrated to the Nanyang region in the 19th century and it has been popular staple food among Malaysians over generations.

The chickens are often poached or roasted. The traditional method for poached chicken involves poaching it before dipping it into ice water to produce jelly-like skin finishing. On the other hand, roasting the chicken with spices gives crispiness to the skin and infuse the meat with aroma.

The fragrant oil rice is often regarded as the key for a good chicken rice. It is fluffy and infused with flavors from garlic, ginger & chicken stock, compliment with condiments like chili sauce, minced ginger and dark soy sauce.

Canton Boy's signature chicken rice is truly authentic! Try it out!

Yum Cha

Yum cha in Cantonese Chinese literally means "drink tea" 飲茶

Cantonese often use the phrase "yum cha" instead of dim sum.

Dim sum refers to the small-dishes of food and desserts, whereas yum cha refers to the act of having a meal involving such dishes while drinking tea.
